

Fall 2017 Winter

We are in some crazy times, aren't we? It seems more important than ever to stand by the environment by living sustainably and with integrity. To that end: we heard you, and have changed our recycled plastic buttons for wood, for an even more all-natural-all-the-time Nomads experience. We also tweaked our hemp knit for this fall, bringing back what worked, and pushing into new designs. We have three new prints that reflect our global inspiration as we mix and match influences from India to South America, and from inner city moto style to earth-loving country.

This season continues to push the envelope with all natural fabric blends and styles that mix past and future to create a line of clothing equally at home in the city or mountains, and to wear while wielding your pen, your rights, or your light saber.

A woman with blonde hair in a ponytail, wearing a purple lace bikini, is sitting on a sandy beach. She is looking to her right with her hand on her forehead. A white line-art dreamcatcher is overlaid on the right side of the image. The text 'Energy Flows where intention goes.' is written in a white, handwritten font across the dreamcatcher. Below the main text, '-unknown' is written in a smaller, similar font.

We always do our best to match our printed colours swatches in our catalogue to the fabric colours we use. But the simple truth is that ink pigment, fabric pigments and for that matter, screen colours are not the same. Please use this chart as a reference only for the great colour array we have chosen this season.
